How To Choose Nature For Your Spirit

July 6, 2020

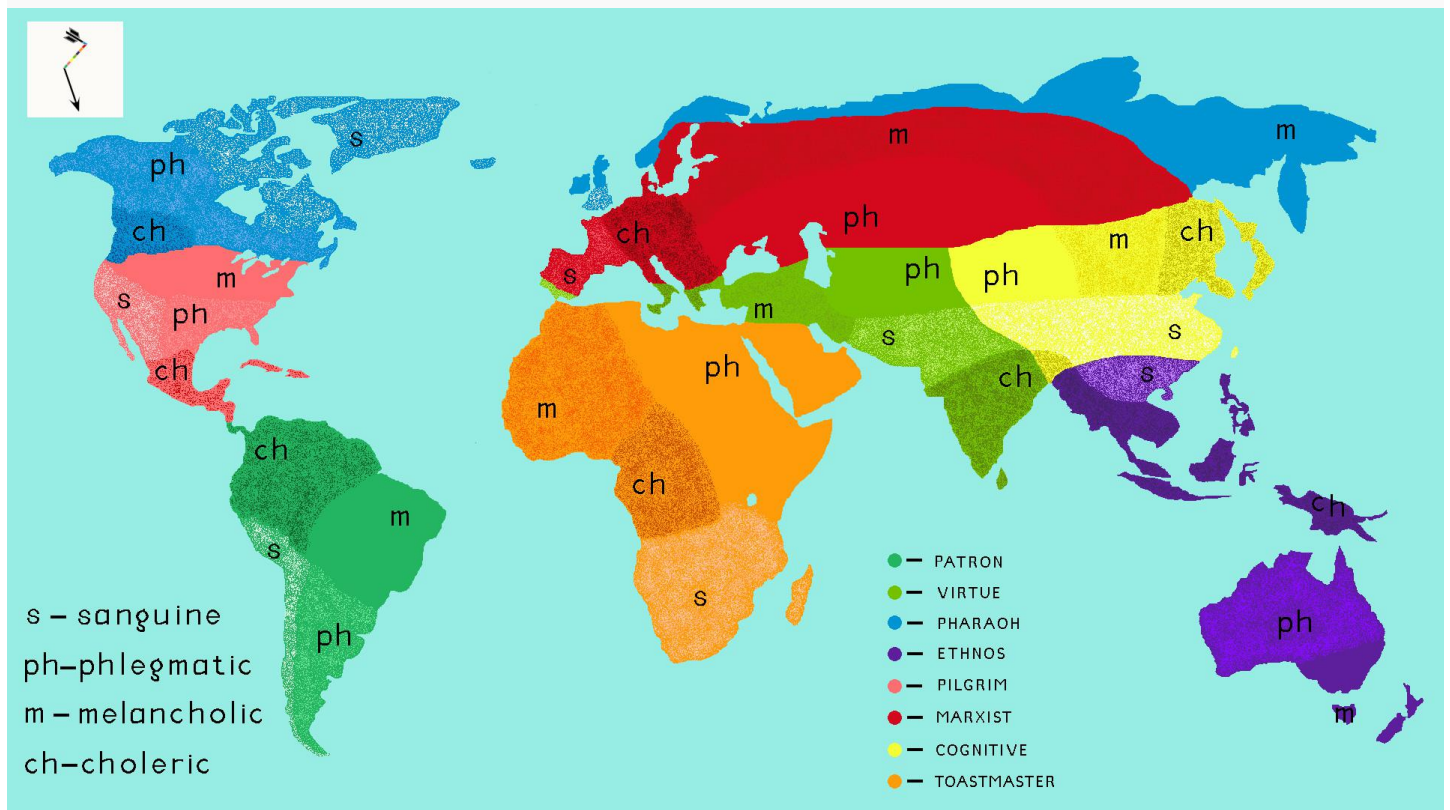

How to choose nature for your spirit and personality? Nobody knows about that, except Worldtypology.com. Some people like desert sands, while the others cannot live without the sea. Some people like snowy mountains, while the others like some concrete shapes of trees and bushes.

How To Choose Nature For Your Personality?

We study different tastes of eight innate groups of people and their temperaments. Nature that is suitable for eight innate groups of people were discovered by us with a help of typological method using detailed visual matching of facts. Facts that were used for creation of a map and its boundaries include geographical climate and relief of different places of the world, flora and combination of these facts with theoretical qualities and phenomena like temperament, abstract/concrete, typical/atypical, dominating colour of soil and rocks, degree and visual shape of flora and natural planting of greenery of the region, etc. So how to choose nature for yourself? Now we have created a map below for you in order to show what kind of nature is right for you.

Our Map Of Climate And Nature Will Help You To Choose The Right Nature

(Published in August 27, 2020 and updated in August 27, 2021)

You can see that nature on a map has also exactly eight innate groups.

First of all we think, that nature logically created different lands with different climate and resources. For what? For different groups of people and animals. It is important that only some certain groups of people will continuously live in the future on a certain territory. That is why our nature is so different, because people are different too. Each innate group of nature should belong to corresponding innate group of people. This will help everyone to live in harmony with their nature and environment and this will not disturb others.

For example, your prospective group in your test result is Ethnos and you have choleric temperament. Then you should look for the nature that is called Ethnos on a map. In our case it is violet area. You also should look for “choleric” or “sanguine” type of nature inside violet area (marked as “ch” and “s”). Sanguine should look for choleric or sanguine nature type. Phlegmatic (“ph”) should look for melancholic (“m”) or phlegmatic and melancholic should look for phlegmatic or melancholic type of nature.

Every person should look for the type of climate and nature of the same innate group and temperament he has or compatible temperament.

But despite this, chaotic migration of people for economical or defensive reason changed this order. And nobody knows when people will realize that and consciously migrate back to the territories that should belong to them.

If you are interested to see what type of innate groups of people are living in each country now, check our statistics here.

If you don't know nothing yet about eight innate groups of people we discovered, read here.

You can read more about temperament here.

Attention! Our map boundaries are analytical and approximate. More detailed boundaries will be marked during further research and update. Note, that our map and information published here is not a recommendation or advice for you in order to change your current place of residence.

All your attempts to change your residency or to travel you do at your own risk. This is due to the fact, that our map does not show any economical, criminal or political situation in any country on our map. The natural beauty also may not correspond to your expectations in each country and may change due to human factor and mass production.
